Lincoln-Douglas Square

Abraham Lincoln (pictured right) was the 16th President of the United States, from 1861-1865. He was in office during the Civil War.

But before that, he wished to run for the Senate against Stephen A. Douglas. The two were involved in seven debates, the last of which took place in Alton in October of 1858.

Douglas won the election for senator, and just two years later Lincoln was elected president.

This spot in downtown Alton depicts the debate on the very place where it occurred so long ago.

Have you been to Lincoln-Douglas Square?

Downtown Alton

There are so many fun spots to visit in Alton, and downtown is a great place to start.

Money Dog took in the view of the sparkling waters of the Mississippi River and the Clark Bridge, a lovely yellow suspension bridge.

He also visited the steamboat mural on the corner of Henry Street and Broadway. Can you believe that steamboats like that used to cruise on the river all the time?

We walked across the pedestrian bridge to look at the Clark Bridge. Did you know that this spot is where the previous Clark Bridge crossed the river? Ask your parents or grandparents if they remember how narrow and a little scary it was to drive over! Here's a photo.

Ask your parents if you can visit these sites together. See if you can take a picture in the same spots as Money Dog! Your Mom or Dad can post your photos to Facebook and tag us @MidwestMembersCreditUnion.

Belk Park

Have you ever been to Belk Park in Wood River? There's SO much to do when you visit this beautiful place!

There are THREE big playgrounds, swing sets, and a path all the way around the lake where you can walk, run, ride your bike, skate, and play.

You could fish, play ball, chase the ducks and geese, have a picnic with your family, or just run through the fields and have fun with your friends.

As you can see, Money Dog had a great time swinging and walking around the lake.

Do YOU like to go to the park? What's your favorite thing to play on in the playground?
